A Marquee to be Let, or Sold will hold 100 persons'.

Original and very early handbill for the match played at the Lord's 'New' Ground at Dorset Fields on the 16th and 17th June 1813 by Craft, Printer of Wells Street, Oxford Street, London. The handbill measures 6.5"x7.25". Irregular borders, minor loss to lower right corner, some age toning otherwise in good condition for its age

£800/1200

Mitcham won the match by 115 runs. John Sherman top scored with 41 in Mitcham's first innings, and his brother James Sherman top scored with 48 in the second innings. Bowling details are unclear but Hammond took five wickets in the match for the M.C.C. Four balls were bowled per over in the match

The Lord's we know today as the home of cricket is actually the third incarnation of Lord's Cricket Ground. The original ground opened in 1787 at Dorset Fields, with the last match played in 1810.

However, by 1809, London was expanding rapidly and rent was on the rise in Dorset Fields. Thomas Lord looked elsewhere and that year opened a new ground in the Eyre Estate in St John's Wood. For two years both grounds operated along side each other although the second ground was unpopular, lacking in atmosphere and a difficult landlord who objected to the opening of a tavern. Records appear to show that only two more matches were played at the second, or 'New' ground, after the match to which this handbill relates. However a stroke of luck occurred for Lord and M.C.C. in 1812 when he discovered that the Regent's Canal was due to be built straight through his unloved cricket ground. With £4,000 in compensation, he gratefully accepted another plot of land on the Eyre Estate, slightly further up the road in St. John's Wood, the current Lord's Cricket Ground, the first match being played there in 1814, over two hundred years ago

- 2 'Cricket. on Monday, July 20th 1829, and following day, A Grand Match will be played in Lord's Ground, Marylebone between nine married Gentlemen and two married Players, and nine unmarried Gentlemen and two unmarried Players. Cricket Bats, Balls & Stumps with the Laws of Cricket as revised by the Marylebone Club, in the Year 1828, may be had of B. Dark at his Manufactory on the Ground. Admittance 6d. Marylebone on the 20th July 1829 by Traveller, Printer, 25 Bell Street, Edgware Road, London. The handbill measures 7.25"x 9.75". Some minor wear to bill extremities, minor staining otherwise in good condition for its age. A rare handbill for the match £600/800

The Unmarried 'Single' team won the match by nine wickets. Wenman top scored with 21, Jardine 17 etc. Broadbridge appears to have taken eight and Lillywhite five wickets in the match

- 3 'Herts Cricket Fund' [1819]. Many Gentlemen of the County of Hertford, having expressed a wish to promote the Game of Cricket by subscription, it has been deemed advisable to carry the same into effect under the following regulations'.

Some folds, minor wear and foxing to bill otherwise in good condition for its age. A rare and very early Hertfordshire cricket handbill

£180/250

- 4 'The Post Boy'. Early and original one page, two sided newspaper for 5th to 7th October 1710, printed by L. Beardwell of Blackfriars. The majority of the paper is devoted to the case of David Polehill (1674-1754), M.P. for Kent in 1710, who stood accused of speaking ill of King Charles and of his 'horrid' murder. The gentlemen of Kent felt that Polehill was unsuitable to be their M.P. and was arrested and charged. One of the supporting documents is an affidavit, quoted on p2 col1, recording Polehill talking unfavourably about the King at a Cricket Match at Westerham in

- Kent. This early reference is not mentioned in Maun. The newspaper has binding holes to left edge, otherwise in very good condition for its age. A rare item £70/100
- 5 'The London Evening Post'. Early and original four page newspaper for 3rd to 5th July 1746, printed by J. Meres of Ludgate. Page four column 1 features an eight line announcement of a match. 'On Monday next the Gentlemen of Bromley in Kent, Addington in Surrey, with Kipps (sic) of Eltham, will play a Match at Cricket on Dover's-Hill at Croydon in Surrey, for Fifty Pounds... No person allow'd to bring any Liquor that don't live in the Parish'. The newspaper has been tightly trimmed to top edge, minor stains, otherwise in good condition for its age. A rare item £100/150
- The result of the match is not known. Wicket-keeper Kips was one of the players in the Kent team that defeated All England in the famous match of 1744, the first match for which the full scores have been found. Haygarth records the match as of 1746. Ashley-Cooper subsequently verified the correct date of the match as 1744. Kips was the highest scorer in both innings of the victorious Kent team and he made a stumping and took a catch*
- 6 'The London Evening Post'. Early and original four page newspaper for 21st to 23rd August 1746, printed by J. Meres of Ludgate. Page four column 2 features a five line announcement of a match. 'On Monday next Eleven Gentlemen of Edmonton, and several Parishes in the neighbouring Part of the County of Middlesex, play a Match at Cricket in the Artillery-Ground, against Eleven Gentlemen of London...'. The newspaper has been tightly trimmed to top edge, minor damage to centre fold, otherwise in good condition for its age. A rare item £70/100
- The result of the match is not known. According to Maun, both Waghorn and Ashley-Cooper used this newspaper source*
- 7 'The Kentish Gazette'. Original early newspaper for 26th August 1791 printed in Canterbury. Page one column 1 features a small advertisement with a vignette of a cricket scene. The advertisement reads 'Cricketing. On Tuesday next will be played a Match of Cricket at Faversham - eleven Gentlemen of Greenstreet, against eleven Gentlemen of Faversham, for One Guinea a man'. Immediately below is a second advertisement for a return match at Aldington between 'the Gentlemen of Romney Marsh with one man given, and the Gentlemen of Aldington Club with two men given, for One Guinea a man... N.B. A good Ordinary [meal at fixed time and price] on the ground by William Hobbs'. The newspaper has been tightly trimmed to the lower edge, with tear to centre fold, otherwise in good condition for its age. A rare item £80/120
- 8 'Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper' 15th October 1859. Four original broadsheet pages, pp305-308, tipped in to blue cloth boards. Includes scores and a long and detailed report (some 2700 words) on The International Cricket Match between the Twenty-two of the United States and George Parr's England team at Hoboken on 3-5 October 1859. This match, the first of the American leg of the tour, was won by the tourists by an innings and 64 runs, Parr, Caffyn and Jackson sharing the wickets. The background to the match is explained and the report is a very full account of the strokes made, the wickets taken, the refreshment breaks and the perfect weather. Fred Lillywhite's book on the tour gives little information apart from the scorecard. Also on page 305 is a short part-column report on the match of 6 October between mixed teams captained by Lockyer and by Stephenson, proceeds being for the benefit of the players. Page 306 features a fine full-page engraved scene of the ground with the match in progress at Hoboken before a large crowd of 12,000 to 15,000 (Lillywhite suggests 25,000). Minor ageing, otherwise in very good condition for its age. A rare firsthand account from the first England cricket tour overseas £150/250
- Expatriate English newsman Frank Leslie (1821-1880) founded this, the first great American illustrated weekly newspaper, after years of experience on the staff of the Illustrated London News, and other British papers. The paper was published until 1922*
- 9 'L'Univers Illustre'. 30th June 1883. Issue 1475 of the French magazine/newspaper. Fourteen page broadsheet magazine, profusely illustrated throughout. Page 407 features a twenty seven line article on 'Le Cricket en Angleterre'. The article makes the (dubious?) claim that the English game was derived from the game known in France as 'crosse' or 'cricket' and gives a description of the game and remarks on its popularity in England. Page 412 features a full page of engraved scenes of followers and participants at Canterbury. Some wear to spine, last page becoming detached, otherwise G/VG. Rare £70/100
- 10 Australia v England 'Bodyline' 1932/33. Collection of eight original and complete copies of 'The Times' newspaper dated 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 17th January, 1st, 13th, 15th and 27th February 1933. Each with interesting and extensive coverage of the Tests and some with reports and comment on the Bodyline controversy. The newspapers appear to have been bound in the past, some ageing and wear, otherwise in good clean condition. An excellent record of the 'timeless' series with immediate reaction to the controversies. Sold with 'The Times. M.C.C. Number 25th May 1937 with picture of Thomas Lord to front cover £150/250
- Reports include:- Second Test, Melbourne, 30th December to 3rd January. The issue for 2nd January, p3 cols 2 & 3 reports on the close of the second day's play in the second Test at Melbourne with England struggling on 161-9 replying to Australia's 228. Comments include 'On Friday the "leg-theory" had been exploited [by England] with remarkable success, but today an orthodox attack [by the Australians] was even more successful'. 3rd January, p4 cols 6 & 7 reports on day three. 'The third day of the Test Match was even more remarkable even than the two that had gone* before. Australia gained a lead of 59 runs on the first innings and seemed to be in a strong position, but then their batting except for Bradman [103no], Woodfull [26] and Richardson [32] failed miserably'. Australia were bowled out for 191, England ending the day on 43-0. 'Jardine handled his bowling admirably. He directed the attack and placed his field effectively... The prospects for to-morrow are for a keen fight with a tight finish'. 4th January, p5 cols 1&2. 'The Second Test Match which has seen many changes of fortunes and remarkable happenings, ended at 3 o'clock this afternoon, amid scenes of great enthusiasm, in a victory for Australia by 111 runs.' England having been bowled out for 169. The report focusses on the successes of the Australian spin bowling and the dominance of the bowlers throughout the match. Commenting on Woodfull, 'Like Jardine he was masterly in his captaincy. Jardine was more fussy and perhaps Woodfull's quiet method accomplished more'.

Third Test, Adelaide, 13th-19th January. 17th January, p6 cols 1&2. The third day had ended with England in a strong position with a lead of 204 runs and nine wickets in hand. 'There had been mild demonstrations today when Ponsford was hit on the body, but when Oldfield was struck on the head by a ball from Larwood the crowd of over 35,000 gave vent to their feelings. Larwood was then bowling to an orthodox off field...'. 1st February, p4 cols 1&2. This issue features an article on 'Leg-Theory and Body-Bowling' following England's win in the Third Test at Adelaide by 338 runs. Page 10, col 6 quotes 'The text from the Australian Board of Control's reply to the M.C.C.'s telegram on the "body-line" bowling controversy... We appreciate your difficulty in dealing with the matter raised in our cable without having seen the actual play. We unanimously regard body-line bowling, as adopted in some games during the present tour, as opposed to the spirit of cricket and unnecessarily dangerous to the players. We are deeply concerned that the ideals of the game shall be preserved, and we have therefore appointed a committee to report on the action necessary to eliminate such bowling from all cricket in Australia as from 1933-34 season... We do not consider it necessary to cancel the remainder of the programme'. The main article considers the implications of 'the English captain is free to employ whatever tactics he considers suitable in the two remaining Test matches. If, however, there is any recrudescence of the disorderly behaviour which marred the Third Test Match at Adelaide it is possible that M.C.C., without further discussion, may issue orders for the abandonment of the tour'. The article continues with an analysis of the differences between, 'bumping' (short bowling), 'leg-theory' and 'body-line' bowling.

Fourth Test, Brisbane, 10th-16th February. 13th February, p3 col 5. Reporting on the second day's play, Australia had been bowled out for 340, England 'having taken the last seven Australian wickets for 89 runs, they scored 99 without loss. 'It is frankly admitted that nobody can justly question the fairness of one single ball bowled'. 15th February, p6 cols 1&2. Resuming on 271-8 on day four, 'it was not expected that England would reach Australia's score. The wicket was beginning to wear... Paynter and Verity resumed their innings... They achieved the unexpected', England's innings closing on 356. In Australia's reply 'Bradman endeavoured to play Larwood as he did in the first innings and he made the same mistake. He hit two 4's in succession, and then lifted the ball and was caught... the remaining batsmen were clearly nervous.' Australia ended the day on 108-4. England went on to win the fourth Test by six wickets.

Fifth Test, Sydney, 23rd-28th February. 27th February, p3 cols 5&6. England ended the third day's play 17 runs behind Australia's first innings total of 435 with two wickets to fall. The report focusses on an excellent innings of 98 by Larwood, and Hammond's 101, his second century of the series, 'the only player to have achieved this honour'. 'The ground fielding of the Australians was good... but the catching was deplorable'. England won the final Test by eight wickets

England won the five match series 4-1. Although no serious injuries arose from any short-pitched deliveries while a leg theory field was set, the tactic still led to considerable ill feeling between the two teams.

I have been very busy lately, writing for 'Cricket', bringing up to date the 'Records', compiling the "Loose Strings" for the '99 Lillywhite, etc... I liked the book very much indeed'. Ashley-Cooper comments on two errors, including one in his own contribution to the anthology. 'There are two slight slips in the book. In your "Ode to W.G." you refer to Geo. Griffiths: there is no 's' in his name. And in my article I referred to Lord F. Beauclerck (sic) throwing his bat upon the ground. It should of course be hat'. He also suggests that a copy should go to 'Cricket' for review. He ends 'I leave here on Saturday for Hastings. I shall look out for you of course. I shall live on the ground next week watching W.G. knocking up hundreds!' Golding enjoyed the book but was 'appalled by its picture of Cricket as a mixture of warfare, total, urban, guerrilla and patriotic...'. Golding suggests that the book tends to confirm some people's view that 'Yorkshire should negotiate separately with the common market!' The letter is signed 'Ever, Bill Golding'. G/VG £300/400

Kortwright states 'The question (personal) you ask me is an impossible one for me to answer as I never played my own bowling... I was only dug up by a few ignorant so-called cricket reporters as a means of comparison with the pace of Harold Larwood... in the Douglas Jardine expedition in Australia, when Australia got some of their own medicine and couldn't stomach it. The best way to compare the pace of any bowler with another is to bat against both of them in my opinion, which in most cases is impossible'. Nicely signed 'Yours sincerely, Chas J. Kortwright. According to The Times, 'A number of new players have turned out for Worcestershire this season'. Moss*
- had 15 first-class appearances under his belt, mainly for Oxford University, but his previous first-class match had been 32 years earlier in 1893 against the touring Australians and he was now 57. Pycroft asks Ponsonby to pass on to his brother 'my Cricket Story in Elkerton Rectory' ('Twenty Years in the Church'), first published in 1860 and in a new and cheaper edition in 1862 - listed in Padwick 6046-1. Rosenwater takes issue over a small point on page 10 of the book, '...you say that F. S. Ashley-Cooper's collection went to Cahn in 1930: in fact it was

He goes on to provide much detail about the length of his run-up and the front-foot position at delivery, 'Of course in later years I came down like a „Äufairy,Äü'. He was very loyal to me when I was being given a rough ride by the cheap press without a real knowledge of the game and always looking for a sensation'. 341 Charles Burgess Fry, Sussex & England 1892-1921. Two page handwritten letter [c1921] on 'Hamble, Hants' headed paper from Fry to Helen Key, wife of Kingsmill Key, who Fry was attracted to at the age of 19. Fry talks of poetry and seems to be making advances to her...!. The letter begins 'Dear Senora, Oh Ya!(La?)..... When you said you did not approve of discipline what I thought was this 'She remains, as ever one of the divine experiences of life but she just does not know about this.... and it is strange, because of some things her knowledge is wonderful..'. Percy White was at Yarmouth last time I heard of him. Truth- I am always meaning to come and be stroked. You stroke people, you know.... Your brother is a poet- which is frightfully rare. I should be afraid he is? worked? to much to record in the popular sense. Well here is your wicked little book. I expect you'll laugh a little at my entry- I hope you will'. Signed with Fry's initials 'C.B.F.' G/VG £80/120

Percy White was one of Fry's uncles, he was a well known Victorian novelist and a sufficiently good cricketer to play for the Gentlemen of Sussex. Helen Key's brother was Lascelles Abercrombie.

'Furthermore, the county's [Surrey C.C.C.] decision to release him, after his appearances in 1891 may have been influenced by one of its top amateurs, Kingsmill Key, noticing that the nineteen year old Fry was smitten with his wife, Helen. Over fifty years later, C.B.'s ardour seemed undimmed: he describes her as 'divinely charming' and 'my first adoration' and was still able to recall, in 1945, 'the subtle perfume of her presence'. As a result of Surrey action, Fry found himself playing for Sussex, a poorer county... Quotes from 'C.B. Fry. An English Hero'. Iain Wilton. London 1999. Page 96

342 Charles Burgess Fry, Sussex & England 1892-1921. Two page handwritten letter [c1921] headed 'Hamble from Fry to Helen Key, wife of Kingsmill Key. Fry talks of poetry and prose. The letter begins 'Oh! no- Nobody would bother to go and see you, you [?] at my caution... I don't think!.....I will take you to the poorly book shop'. Allenby [poet/writer?] is jolly good- but the last verse far the best because it is lyric and you are lyric, not epic. You always have astonishingly good truth in all you write. In point of fact I nearly telephoned to you Saturday and asked myself to tea if you were at home. But my appointments made nuisances of themselves and altered times. I don't know anything and I am a thorough philistine, as

- you are very well aware: and awfully loyal[?]. However its so [??] nice of you to send me your poetry to see and its so flattering to think my interest in it is of any value. I'll tele you when I'm next in London, see if I can raise you'. Signed with Fry's initials 'C.B.F.' G/VG £80/120
- 343 Charles Burgess Fry, Sussex & England 1892-1921. Two page handwritten letter 1921 from Fry to Helen Key, wife of Kingsmill Key. The letter begins 'Dear Helen, Of course it is just the subtlest kind of compliment to send me your poetry to consider. But you know it is quite impossible for me not to like what you write for you could not write anything I should not like. I knew that long ago- as a fact I find these things quite beautiful but I have not had time to analyse why- in themselves and apart from pride & position and don't blush. I think I like the moon? but anything hellenic always ....takes me, .... sighing[?] explicit pagan (you are always, pagan- bottom of page) a meaning divorced from modernism and anglosaxism- but the unknown [?] is quite lovely- what ideas you have!. The last two lines are exquisite..... 'No I don't work much or do anything much just a present. I wish you were not so far away'. Signed with Fry's initials 'C.B.F.' Sold with envelope dated 1921 'To Mrs Key at Dream Cottage near Penzance' and a newspaper cutting with annotation by Helen Key. G/VG £80/120

- In 1861, 'Spiers and Pond' brought over to Australia the first All-England cricket team, who sailed on I.K. Brunel's steamship, SS Great Britain, from Liverpool. This was the first commercial sponsorship of cricket.*
- The idea for the tour came from the English proprietors of a Melbourne company called Spiers and Pond, which ran the Café de Paris in the city. Spiers was Felix William Spiers and Pond was Christopher Pond. Their representative in England, a Mr Mallam, had tried to interest Charles Dickens in a lecture tour of Australia and New Zealand but without success. Instead, having noted the success of the 1859 venture and the growing popularity of cricket in Australia, Spiers and Pond decided to attract a team of leading English cricketers. Mr Mallam therefore journeyed to Birmingham in September 1861 to watch the North v. South game at Aston Park. During the game, Mallam met the cricketers at the nearby Hen and Chicken Hotel to make a business proposal. As a result, twelve players agreed to tour Australia next winter on terms of £150 per man plus expenses.*
